Tips:

- Thicker rope may start to fray after you are working with it for awhile. Wrap tape around the end of the rope to prevent fraying.
- Deciding how much rope to use for a project can be tricky. A good trick is to decide how long your finished piece will be, then measure out 4.5-5.5 times that amount of rope. For example, if you want your finish piece to be 3 feet long then each piece of rope should be between 13.5-16.5 feet long.
- Plant hangers-the rule of thumb is to measure half the diameter of the pot between the square knots in your “basket” portion. So for a 6 inches pot it would be 3 inches in between your crossover knots.
